HOCKEY IS TURNING to Hollywood this playoff season. The NHL has enlisted a motley crew of celebrity bloggers to comment on their favorite team's Cup quest. They may not all be talking hockey, but they certainly have something to say. -LAURA DOWNHOUR

ACTOR TOM CAVANAGH SENATORS FAN "Here now, a quick question: Who won the Presidents' Trophy this year? If you started to answer, you're already wrong. It's a trick question, because it doesn't matter who wins the Presidents' Trophy come playoff time. Simple equation: Prez Cup + $1 = cup o' coffee ($20 if you go to Starbucks)!"

SUPERMODEL CHRISTIE BRINKLEY ISLANDERS FAN (on her first game) "The glass is shaking, these gigantic men are crashing into the glass in front of us, and there was fighting (which I don't approve of), so I was glued to the glass right from the start ... I can't even tell you, my adrenaline was going, I was trembling!"

ACTOR DAVE ANNABLE DEVILS FAN "I got an audition for a Devils commercial. I ended up booking the gig and ... they gave me eight tickets to opening night. They showed the commercial and then showed me sitting in the seats ... that was a really cool job to get. In fact, I wouldn't even have done that for the Rangers."

RAPPER LIL JON THRASHERS FAN "Kari Lehtonen actually has my picture on the back of his helmet. He was injured last season when I was going to some games. Then one day, I go, and he showed me his helmet and said, 'I got you on the back of my helmet.' We always go in the locker room to say what's up to him before a game!"

SINGER/DANCER WILLA FORD STARS FAN "My first game, I remember I asked someone why everyone was leaving before the first quarter was over. I couldn't figure out why everyone was leaving. I thought they were maybe trying to beat the traffic, but it turned out it was just intermission. Talk about a farm girl!"

SINGER AMY GRANT PREDATORS FAN "My blogs won't be politically correct ramblings about how great the sport is or about how it's an honor just to make it to the playoffs. I am an unashamed and proud Nashville Predators fan, and I'm here to cheer them on!"
